Part D – COLLECTIVE AGREEMENTS

70. Legal effect of collective agreements

- (1) A collective agreement binds -
 - (a) the parties to the agreement;
 - (b) the members of any registered trade union that is a party to the agreement;
 - (c) the members of any registered employers' organisation that is a party to the agreement;
 - (d) the employees in the recognised bargaining unit, if a trade union that is a party to the agreement has been recognised as an exclusive bargaining agent in terms of section 64; and
 - (e) any other employees, employers, registered trade unions or registered employers' organisations to whom the agreement has been extended in terms of section 71.
- (2) A collective agreement binds for the whole period of the agreement every person bound in terms of subsection (1)(b) and (c) who was a member at the time it became binding or who becomes a member after it became binding, irrespective of whether or not that person continues to be a member of the registered trade union or registered employers' organisation for the duration of the agreement.
- (3) Subject to subsection (4), the provisions of a collective agreement relating to the terms and conditions of employment vary every contract of employment between an employee and an employer who are both bound by the agreement and are deemed to have incorporated into the contract of employment.

[The phrase “deemed to have incorporated” should be “deemed to have been incorporated” to be grammatically correct.]

- (4) Unless the agreement expressly states otherwise, a collective agreement does not preclude the conclusion of a contract of employment that contains terms and conditions more favourable than those contained in the agreement, provided that the employer enters into the said contract in good faith and without impairing or undermining collective bargaining or the status of the registered trade union involved.

71. Extension of collective agreements to non-parties

- (1) Despite section 1, for the purposes of this section, ‘collective agreement’ means an agreement between an employer or a registered employers' organisation and a registered trade union that is recognised by that employer or employers' organisation in terms of section 64.

[Most other provisions of the Act use double quotation marks to offset terms being defined.]

- (2) The parties to a collective agreement may ask the Minister, in the prescribed form, to extend that agreement to employers and employees -
 - (a) who are not members of the parties to the agreement; and
 - (b) who are in the industry to which such agreement relates.
- (3) The Minister must -

 - (b) invite objections to the request within a period specified in the Gazette, which period must not exceed 30 days as from the date of publication of the request in the Gazette;
 - (c) serve copies of any objection received in terms of paragraph (b) on the parties to the agreement; and

- (d) invite responses to those objections within a period, which must not extend more than 14 days as from the date of invitation.
- (4) The Minister must not extend a collective agreement unless -
 - (a) the Minister has considered any objection or response received in terms of subsection (3); and
 - (b) the Minister is satisfied that -
 - (i) the agreement is not in conflict with the Namibian Constitution or any law;
 - (ii) the agreement is not, on the whole, less favourable than the terms and conditions of employment that applied to employees immediately before the conclusion of the agreement;
 - (iii) the agreement provides for an arbitration procedure to resolve disputes about its interpretation, application and enforcement; and
 - (iv) the request to extend the agreement complies with this section.
- (5) If that agreement meets all the requirements set out in subsection (4), the Minister must extend that collective agreement for a fixed period to the parties contemplated in subsection (2), by publishing a notice to that effect in the Gazette.
- (6) After a notice contemplated in subsection (5) has been published, the Minister may, at the request of the parties to the collective agreement, publish a further notice in the Gazette -
 - (a) extending the period specified in the earlier notice by a further period determined by the Minister;
 - (b) if the period specified in the earlier notice has expired, declaring a new date from which, and a further period during which, the provisions of the earlier notice will be effective; or
 - (c) canceling all or part of the notice published in terms of subsection (5).
- (7) Subsections (2) to (5), read with the necessary changes, apply in respect of the publication of any notice in terms of subsection (6)(a) or (b).
- (8) In addition to publishing any information in the Gazette as contemplated in this section, the Minister must, where appropriate, publish the information through other available means, with a view to ensuring that the intended recipients of the information receive the information.

72. Exemptions from an extended collective agreement

- (1) Any person bound by the extension of a collective agreement under section 71 may apply in the prescribed form to the Minister for an exemption from the extension of the agreement.
- (2) If the Minister is satisfied that special circumstances exist justifying the exemption applied for, the Minister may -
 - (a) exempt the person who has applied in terms of subsection (1) by notice in writing; and
 - (b) may subject the exemption to any condition.
- (3) The Minister must serve a copy of any exemption granted in terms of this section on the parties to the collective agreement.

73. Disputes arising from application, interpretation or enforcement of a collective agreement

- (1) Every collective agreement must provide for a dispute resolution procedure, including an arbitration procedure to resolve any dispute about the interpretation, application or enforcement of the agreement in accordance with Chapter 8 Part C or D unless provision is made in another collective agreement for the resolution of that dispute.

- (2) If there is a dispute contemplated in subsection (1), any party to the dispute may refer the dispute to the Labour Commissioner if -
 - (a) the collective agreement does not provide for a procedure as required by subsection (1); or
 - (b) the procedure is not operative.
- (3) The party who refers the dispute to the Labour Commissioner must satisfy the Labour Commissioner that a copy of the referral has been served on all other parties to the dispute.
